LABOR IN THE PULPITS

Labor in the Pulpits is a program begun and implemented jointly by the AFL-CIO and Interfaith Worker Justice. The program recruits congregations that will host labor leaders to speak over Labor Day weekend about the shared values between faith and labor. Most of the recruitment of congregations and speakers is handled at the local level, but we'd like to begin soon to enlist the support of international unions and national faith bodies in promoting the program.

Yes, I'd like to get my union more involved in Labor in the Pulpits. Please:

- Send an article about Labor in the Pulpits to our Communications Department.
- Send an e-mail flyer about the program that can be sent to our e-mail list. Send it to:
Name _____ Phone or E-mail _____
- Contact the following person about how to reach our local leaders:
Name _____ Phone or E-mail _____
- Make a presentation about the program at an executive board meeting in order to recruit the leadership to participate. Contact the following person about arranging this:
Name _____ Phone or E-mail _____
- Arrange for me to speak in a congregation over Labor Day weekend.
I would feel most comfortable in a _____ congregation.
